PREFACE

This author-subject index covers the relatively stable period in U.S. artillery development dating from January through December, 1977 - 1981. Frequency of issue was bi-monthly for volumes 45-49. As with prior issues the journal staff included some subject-title indexes in the December issue of a given volume as a reader service. It is the intention of this index to amplify that coverage by including authors and exploring subjects at different levels of depth, as required. As is the practice with commercial indexes this number does not include a titles section. Throughout, the thrust is on specificity of entry as related to the principal subject: Artillery.
